Too many primary care practices operate without access to valid, reliable data. This is especially true in rural America where benchmark data for clinical practices and providers are limited. That's why we created POND® and partner with the National Organization of State Offices of Rural Health (NOSORH) to:

- Define the metrics most relevant to small and rural primary care providers
- Create an easy-to-use web application to collect and share data
- Mix data provided by clinics with Cost Report data to create a 360° view
- Stimulate regional collaboration and public reporting of relevant metrics
- Build a database to quantify the value of our country's rural practices
- Bring new information to the rural community to strengthen advocacy efforts
